to the impartiality and honesty that has marked Chairman Garrett's rulings in committee.

Senator Garrett accepted the token in an extempore speech, which, he intimated, was imperfectly memorized. He was glad, he said in all scriousness that his committee rulings had been characterized as fair and honest. He had tried to be fair and honest. He had tried to be fair and honest in all his rulings, departing from that practice only when it was expedient. The Senate roared.

The lion and the lamb lay down together in the ceremonies that marked the presentation of a large silver pitcher in the ceremonies that marked the presentation of a large silver pitcher to Chairman Holt, of the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The committee had selected as its spokesman Senator Mapp, champion of the measure against which Senator Holt conducted a game but losing fight.

Frettonal Wounds Henled.

Senator Mapp spoke with genuine feeling of his personal affection for the committee chairman, and paid a tribute to the fairness of his administration of the committee's business. While he had found himself in the minority on the committee and frequently on opposite sides with Senator Holt, he said, the end of the session found all members of the committee steadfast friends. The pitcher, he observed, was chosen generous in

Fig. Thousands of men and women who are unwell fail to realize that when the kidneys are out of order, health is an absolute impossibility. The explanation is simple. Life cannot be lived without waste. The blood flows through the arteries and veins, supplying vitality to every organ and part, gathwaste. The blood flows through the arteries and veins, supplying vitality to every organ and part, gathering up the waste material and carrying it to the kidneys. The kidneys are a filter, and it is their office to remove from the blood all these poisonous deposits. When any part of the kidneys are inflamed the purifying is imperfectly done. The circulation is impaired. The blood is loaded with poisonous matter, urea, which accumulates, causing backache, headache, dry skin, dull complexion, tired feeling, loss of energy and eventually Bright's Disease.

To maintain the health of the body, it is very important that the liver, as well as the kidneys, should be kept in a healthy condition, as its secretions play a very important part in the process of digestion and assimilation; if it becomes
